Orange wine is simply white wine made like a red wine.

It takes on characteristics of both – strength, tannins, fruit, minerality – and pairs easily with many foods.

Despite the recent interest in orange wine, its origin is as ancient as winemaking itself. It sits within the larger “natural wine” movement of minimal intervention and manipulation in winemaking. A veritable return to the way wine was made thousands of years ago, when keeping the skins with the grapes was letting nature take its course.

Red Wine: black grapes macerated with their skins

Rose Wine: black grapes briefly macerated with their skins.

White Wine: white grapes macerated without their skins.

Orange Wine: white grapes macerated with their skins.
