BREW OF THE DAY
6.9
3 Different pour methods
(Refer to the barista for more info)

V60
6.9

The V60 has similarities to other brewing methods, but differences in design make it a unique method all on its own. Constructed with raised, spiralled ribs and wide aperture that allows coffee to pass through the paper filter, the V60 brews quickly and makes a nuanced, balanced cup.

CHEMEX
6.9

The Chemex Coffeemaker consists of a narrow-waist glass flask and uses proprietary paper filters, made of chemically bonded paper which remove most of the coffee oils, and thus brew coffee with a different taste from coffee brewed in other coffee-making systems.

COLD BREW COFFEE
7.9

Cold Brew or Cold press refers to the process of steeping coffee grounds in room temperature or cold water for an extended period. The cold-press process requires grinding: coarse-ground beans are soaked in water for a prolonged period of time, usually 12 hours or more. The water is normally kept at room temperature, but chilled water can also be used.
