BIG IN JAPAN

The first mention of Milk Punch dates back to English statesman Thomas Sacheverell's 1688 account of his visit to the Scottish Isles. We're taking this legendary concoction even further round the globe, blending sake, shiso tea, cucumber, elderflower, citrus and clarifying it with milk for a completely unique Japanese rendition.

COCKTAILS

Banana water has many healing properties, increasing your energy and soothing your stomach are just two. By adding fresh pineapple chunks, bar made falernum and a generous serving of rich spiced rum we create the perfect tropical tonic with a kick.

TROPIKALIA

140

*Spiced rum, Falernum, Grilled pineapple, Banana water, Angostura bitters.
Blended & served over crushed ice
All day refresher*

The coconut is the Swiss army knife of the plant kingdom. In one neat package you get a high-calorie food, potable water, fibre that can be spun into rope and a hard shell that turns into charcoal. Combine this magical fruit with mango, tangerines and white chocolate, and the effect is a full sensory elevation.

ELEVATION

*Vodka, Tangerine, Honey, Coconut, Mango, White chocolate.
Shaken & served with chocolate foam

135

*Vodka, Chili, Elderflower, Lemon, Vanilla, Egg white.

The word 'julep' is thought to be derived from the ancient Persian 'gulab', which was a distilled rose petal concoction. Today we know and love it as the Mint Julep. We blend lychee and lemongrass for an exotic eastern twist.

LYCHEE JULEP

145

*Spiced rum, Lychee, Lemongrass, Kafir lime leaf.

There are many conflicting stories about the history of the Margarita cocktail. Our favourite comes from the legendary Balinese Room in Galveston, Texas where, in 1948, head bartender Santos Cruz created a drink for the famous singer Peggy (Margaret) Lee. He used the Spanish version of her name, Margarita, and it has been a hit ever since.

TEQUILA SUNSET

The ubiquitous Daiquiri has been much maligned by cheap flavours and ingredients. Using fresh pineapple and aged rum, we then shake and strain rather than blending, giving us a delicious and authentic rendition of this classic cocktail.

PINEAPPLE PASSION 135

Aged rum, Pineapple, Lime.
Served up ice cold
Pick me up

Hailed as the most delectable of all the tropical fruits, Queen Victoria reportedly offered a knighthood to anyone who could bring her a dragon fruit in edible condition. Lucky for us, there is an abundance in the South East Asia region, and it pairs perfectly with gin. A match made in paradise.
